GLADYS CAUSES FURORE; DEPUTIES PASS BILL

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 7.—The visit of Gladys, bride of Count Laszlo Szeczhényi, to the house of deputies here, caused no small commotion. Deputy Roth, who votes with the government, was speaking and the opposition was obstructing the passage of a bill by making a great noise.

"Be still," cried Roth, "Countess Szeczhényi is in the ladies' gallery. She will think we are savages."

Immediately many members rushed from the floor to get a glimpse of the countess, and the quorum that remained passed the bill.

CLOSES RIVAL BUSINESS WITH AID OF PISTOL

BATON, ROUGE, La., April 7.—Henry J. Hopkins, owner of the Ladies' Cafe, a restaurant, adopted the Western style of putting his competitor out of business by crossing the street and at the point of a pistol ordering him to close up shop.

The Mayer Hotel, owned by Mayer Brothers, is located across the street from Hopkins' cafe, and Mr. Hopkins did not like the business that the Mayer Brothers were doing in their lunch room.

He not only closed up the lunch room but he held up Louis Mayer, the manager, at the point of a pistol; he terrorized the employees of the hotel, told the barkeeper if he moved from behind the bar that he would kill him, and when some citizens came to the relief of Mr. Mayer, he held them off at the point of his gun. For twenty minutes Hopkins had Mayer looking down the muzzle of the gun, and Mayer declared that it was the longest twenty minutes that he ever spent.

"You are getting my trade and you will have to close up," demanded Mr. Hopkins as he met Manager Mayer in front of the hotel. With this he pulled out a gun, and at this point marched his business rival through the front of the hotel to the rear, where he forced Mr. Mayer to tell the man who handled out sandwiches and coffee to close up.

IS DEAD FROM SHOCK GIVEN 6 YEARS AGO

NEW YORK, April 7.—Arrangements have been made at Montclair, N. J., for the removal to Brooklyn of the body of Dr. Joseph O'Connell, who died there of heart disease. Dr. O'Connell was for many years a police surgeon in Brooklyn, and was the physician of Hush McLaughlin.

His death is attributed to a shock received nearly six years ago when a policeman, who had been dismissed from the force as a result of testimony given by Dr. O'Connell went to the latter's office and threatened to blow his brains out. Dr. O'Connell had testified at the trial that the policeman had been drunk on post and was unfit for duty when examined.

A few days later the man, finding Dr. O'Connell alone in his office, slipped quietly behind him, pressed the muzzle of a revolver against his head and declared he was going to kill him. Although Dr. O'Connell grappled with him and held him until help arrived he was an invalid from that day and never recovered from the shock of the encounter.

THE RULING PASSION.

Satan—in what department did you put that new arrival? Assistant—That janitor? I set him to work at the furnace. Satan—Take him off at once, he'll be turning
